

Joanne N. Bruno

Austin, TX 78758

joannenbruno@gmail.com
github.com/joannenbruno linkedin.com/in/joannenbruno joannebruno.com

Summary Software developer with experience in developing web applications by leveraging both her expertise in front-end technologies and UI/UX design. Seeking a hybrid design development role to utilize both creative strengths.

Education B.S. Computer Science, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX Fall 2015

- Information and Intelligent Systems Track
- Department of Visualization Minor in Art

Related Coursework Human Computer Interaction Designing for the Web
Interactive Information Computers and New Media

Experience Dell Technologies, Austin, Texas

Senior Software Engineer October 2017 - Present

Software Developer Senior Analyst February 2016 - October 2017

- Designed and developed software solutions for an internal sales web application with an emphasis on front end features, brand compliance, and cross-browser compatibility
- Established a User Interface Community of Practice (UICoP) to collaborate with user experience teams on UI improvements

Rackspace, San Antonio, Texas

Intern May 2015 - August 2015

- Developed and implemented sustainable support tools to enable product managers across the company
- Created digital Agile Kanban board addressing work ownership and throughput visibility to internal Rackspace customers

Core Competencies Languages: HTML5, CSS3, Javascript, Angular Tools: Adobe Illustrator, Git/Github, Visual Studio, MS Office Suite

Leadership Activities DCS Global Hackathon, Dell Technologies

Lead Designer, Primary Organizer July 2017 - October 2017

- Designed and implemented all branding logos, print, and marketing material
- Coordinated and led global effort to organize hackathon event for over 500 company employees across 3 countries

Honors Awarded Best Design for ATX Hack For Change Project June 2017
Selected Scholar Grace Hopper Conference of Women in Computing October 2013